Tried to Beat Them.

Some three or four weeks ago a rather prepossessing appearing man of middle age and a young woman, understood to be his wife, stopped at Green Mountain Inn, giving the name of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. T. Chaffee.

After a brief stay in the village Mr. and Mrs. Chaffee visited Mt. Mansfield and was so charmed with the beauties of that popular mountain resort that they prolonged their stay to nearly three weeks.

Mr. Chaffee was a man of education and pleasing manners and quickly gained the good will of his fellow guests and the confidence of the proprietors.

He was a leading spirit and a welcome and agreeable entertainer. Among other points of interest Mr. Chaffee and a party of guests visited Smuggler's Notch, using the mountain stage for the trip to and from the Summit House.

When the party had reached the hotel on their return and the subject of paying for the trip was broached, Mr. Chaffee generously insisted that the expense of the trip should be borne solely by himself, telling Driver Faunce that he would "settle with him when he did for the other," referring to the fares from Stowe to the mountain and return.

Mr. Chaffee's fellow guests were naturally touched at this evidence of generosity and, as some slight return, sent for a couple of boxes of choice cigars, which they presented him.

Affairs were in this pleasing state when Mr. Chaffee drove to Stowe last Wednesday and from there to Morrisville where he negotiated a check on a Burlington bank with T. C. Cheney, Esq., who had recently been to the village.

Mr. Cheney telephoned the Burlington bank and learned that things were not as they should be and as Mr. Chaffee had returned to Stowe, took Officer Town and quickly followed him, overtaking him on the village before he returned to Mt. Mansfield.

Mr. Chaffee was naturally anxious to settle the matter as speedily and quietly as possible and promised to send for a bank book which he was in the keeping of his wife at the Summit House and upon which $40 or so could be realized.

Meanwhile Landlord Adams had been communicated with and having troubles of his own in the form of a $75 board bill against him, he made arrangements to have papers served on him as soon as the Cheney matter should be adjusted. This was done and after some little diplomacy Mr. Adams succeeded in securing $50, for which he was duly thankful.

After this Mr. Chaffee is understood to have gone to St. Albans to settle some irregularities made in a former visit. And Driver Faunce is still waiting to "settle it with the other."
